Premium quality, exceptional flavor

Sargento Portionables® offer a new level of quality and convenience to culinary product development. They are Individually Quick Frozen (IQF) pellets made using minimally processed ingredients—like cream, butter and cheese—as well as flavorful seasonings. Adding to their visual appeal is the fact that particulates can be incorporated within the size and shape of individual pellets.

Our proprietary manufacturing process preserves each product's fresh flavors and allows for a clean ingredient statement—two concerns that are top of mind for consumers. With the help of our culinary development specialists, you can choose the ideal Portionables® format for your product application needs. And we'll help you refine the product performance characteristics. The versatility of Portionables® pellets is illustrated in their myriad of application possibilities, which range from sauces and soups to beverages and cereals.

Consumer insight

The recent economic downturn has consumers eating at home more often. But just because they're eating at home more, doesn't mean that they want to cook. It also doesn't mean that consumers are willing to give up the same convenience and food quality they had when eating out. In other words, consumers want to eat restaurant quality meals in the comfort of their own homes. They're looking to replace Monday night Mexican, Wednesday night Chinese and Friday night pizza with comparable, easy-to-prepare meals at home.
